Good Morning,

Welcome to Morning Worship, our regular spot in the week where we take time to offer to God our thankfulness for His sustaining presence throughout the week gone by. In our welcome we need to make a special welcome to our organist this morning, Mr. Greg McHugh who is standing in for our own organist Hebba Benyaghla whose work has called her away from us for the next few weeks and Greg has been willing to come along and fill in for her.

With all the good weather we have been enjoying there will have been many for whom this will have been a time to bathe in this glorious light.

Wilma and I have had a lovely time entertaining our friends from Australia showing off some of the countryside at its best. We also had a visit from someone Park Church knows well, Shirley Crawford, who stayed with us for a few nights. The lovely thing has been that we just pick up from where we last met, such is the richness and depth of the friendship we share – a most precious thing.

The Bible says that there are times when we entertain angels when we don't even know it. I mention that because as I was helping Shirley into the Central Station for her train, on leaving the station an American gentleman asked for directions to the Art Galleries having just docked in Greenock on a cruise with his wife. Rather than wrestle with his phone struggling for a signal, I phoned Wilma waiting in the car round the corner to tell her that we had two guests to take out to the West End from America. To say the least she was surprised as Calum picks up 2 strangers looking for directions. We got them there and finally got home. It was good that we could help this retired FBI agent and his wife, who were more likely used to looking at people with suspicion and to offer good Scottish hospitality. So often it feels good to have followed through on what Jesus said when he told his disciples it was important to go the extra mile. Have a great week.
